First you read about it.

Then you started going to meetings on it.

Now you've got to do something about it.

Before your company merges onto the billion dollar information highway, however, make sure you're heading in the right direction.

On January 18, 1994, Oracle Corporation—the leader in information delivery to the Fortune 500 for over 15 years—will give you the most detailed picture yet of what this highway will look like.

Join some of the most significant media and technology leaders in America today as they communicate their vision of the information highway and the opportunities they expect to find along it.

FIND OUT HOW COOL IT WILL BE IN EVERY LIVING ROOM.

Larry Ellison, founder and CEO of Oracle, will then take you from vision to reality. He'll share with you details on how the information highway will deliver services such as personalized newspapers, video-on-demand, electronic education and home shopping capabilities right into the living room. All at a cost that makes commercial use affordable, profitable, and available right now.

To make your reservations for this significant event at CBS Studios in Hollywood, or in New York, Washington, D.C., or Tokyo, call 1-800 706-3492 today. Because room is definitely limited.
